Media Gives Positive Marks for Performance and Professionalism

For nearly 30 years, CCA's commitment to safety and security, responsive service, quality operations and cost effective solutions has earned the company a solid reputation with federal, state and local government. CCA now stands more than 60 facilities strong in 20 states and the District of Columbia, with 17,000 employees achieving satisfying careers and with nearly 80,000 men and women benefitting from educational, vocational and rehabilitative opportunities.

Major independent media outlets have recognized CCA's strong record of performance. Such highlights are more than praise for a job well done. It's evidence that CCA meets the needs of the government, hardworking taxpayers and inmates efficiently, effectively and professionally.

CCA has earned top rankings from Corporate Responsibility Officer, Forbes, G.I. Jobs and the Nashville Business Journal for its strong record of excellence with communities, government partners and employees.

■ Corporate Responsibility Officer magazine, an executive resource covering company ethics, communications, compliance and social responsibility, recently named CCA among the nation's "100 Best Corporate Citizens." This distinction "translates into recognition for some of [CCA's] policies and practices, a well-earned 'attaboy' from an unbiased arbiter," CRO writes. CCA's ranking was based on the company's efforts in employee relations, finance, governance, lobbying and philanthropy.

■ Forbes magazine, one of the nation's premier business and finance publications, counts CCA among "America's Best Big Companies" for our financial growth, corporate governance, accounting standards, background checks, management ability, innovation and leadership. Ranked "The Best of The Best" in the area of "Business Services and Supplies," CCA has received high marks for our business development and ability to preparedly meet the nation's growing demand for quality corrections management services.

■ G.I. Jobs magazine, a respected magazine for servicepersons transitioning into civilian employment, has named CCA as a "Top 100 Military-Friendly Employer" for four years based on efforts to recruit from the military, results in recruiting from the military and policies for Reserve and Guard members called to active duty, as well as veteran promotional programs and community involvement. CCA is steadfastly committed to hiring those who have committed their careers – and lives – to public service: America's servicemen and servicewomen.

■ The Nashville Business Journal, the established source for business news in CCA's headquartered city, named the company "Best in Business" in the largest company category (those with 501 or more employees). According to Kate Herman, president and publisher of the Nashville Business Journal, "The finalists and winners of the Best in Business Awards showcase unique, growing companies in Middle Tennessee. The success stories of these companies exemplify the challenge and reward of entrepreneurship."
